PhD (ABD) • mia.theocharis@mail.utoronto.ca • 416-302-0745 • Toronto, ON

ABOUT

My research area is historical theology, with a specialization in Jewish-Christian relations. I focus on the 19th to 21st century, particularly as it concerns the Holocaust and antisemitism. I am interested in the encounter between Judaism and Christianity (particularly Catholicism) within the context of the Second World War, both before and after, examining the history of Christian anti-Judaism, the fundamental revision of Catholic theology following the Holocaust, and the Church's ongoing role in addressing antisemitism today. Applying historical methodology, critical analysis, and interdisciplinary research, I aim to confront antisemitism, foster interreligious and interideological understanding, and ensure the lessons of the Holocaust inform our present. Through my publications, presentations, and teaching, I strive to preserve memory and historical consciousness for future generations while encouraging inclusive, reflective dialogue in the areas of theology, religious studies, and history.

EMPLOYMENT

Director of Advocacy, Emerging Campuses

Hillel Ontario | Full-Time | April 2025–Present

- I drive Jewish advocacy on campuses without a formal Hillel presence. I identify and engage Jewish students and allies, develop leadership through targeted programming and collaborate with university administrators and external organizations to address issues like antisemitism and misinformation. By closely monitoring campus climates and quickly reacting to emerging issues, I help build a sustainable, inclusive advocacy network that both protects and enriches the Jewish student community.

Senior Writer

Outlier | Part-Time | 2024–2025

- I enhance AI models through human feedback, optimizing Large Language Models (LLMs) for better prompt responses. I train LLMs using Reinforcement Learning from Human Feedback (RLHF) and evaluate model responses on instruction following, factuality, verbosity, brevity, formatting, harmfulness, and writing style, providing detailed justifications for rankings.

Graduate Assistant
